DEATH OF MRS. LEN D. MURRELL

The news of Mrs. Len D. Murrell's death came through a message received by the family from the hospital where she had been admitted. Mrs. Murrell was in her home when she died, and had been caring for her husband, Mr. Murrell, who was also a patient in the hospital. The doctors had been watching her condition closely, and had advised her to rest and take things easy. Despite her efforts to do so, Mrs. Murrell continued to work hard, and her health began to fail. It was only a matter of time before she passed away.

When the news of Mrs. Len D. Murrell's death came, it was a shock to all who knew her. She was a devoted wife and mother, and her passing left a void that will be hard to fill. She was always there for her family, and her love and support were much appreciated.

The funeral service was held on February 28, 1920, at the Marshall Methodist Church. The service was a time of mourning and remembrance, with friends and family gathered to say goodbye. The casket of Mrs. Murrell was taken to the church, where it was placed in the center of the sanctuary. The service began with a hymn sung by Mrs. Murrell's children, and was followed by a brief address by the Rev. Dr. W. H. Black, who had been a close friend of the family.

After the service, the family gathered at the home of Mrs. Murrell's sister, Miss Alice Murrell, for a reception. The guests were served refreshments and shared stories about Mrs. Murrell, remembering her kind and gentle nature.

The family of Mrs. Murrell was: Mr. and Mrs. George W. Murrell; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Murrell; and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Scotti of Los Angeles, who were advised of Mrs. Murrell's critical condition and later of her death by a message from Mr. Murrell.
