Home From Attending Summer Institute

Rheta J. Smith, Science and math teacher in the Otterville R-VI school has just returned from Waterville, Maine, where she attended a six week summer Institute in science at Calley College.

The Institute is sponsored by the National Science Foundation which awards grants to High School and College teachers of science and mathematics. After the completion of four summers successful participants are awarded the master of science in teaching degree.

This institution was attended by 94 teachers from private, parochial and public schools all over the United States as well as one from Italy. A total of nine courses in chemistry, physics, biology, geology and math were offered, all on the graduate level.

Calley, an old private New England College, also hosted 20 other schools and institutes this summer.

Mrs. Smith, wife of Jack D. Smith was accompanied to Maine by her three youngest children, Kent, Sharman and Shauna and Miss Candy Todd, also of Otterville.
